VOLUME XXI—NO 253 CHARLEROI, WASHINGTON COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1921 TWO CENTS.

HOUSING PLAN SUBMITTED TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Directors told how Present Situation can be Improved by Co-Operation

BEEN TRIED IN OTHER TOWNS

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce held their regular weekly meeting yesterday at four P. M. Mr. Davidson, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company appeared before the Board in the interest of better housing conditions in Charleroi and vicinity. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has done much toward financing small dwellings and apartment houses. The Company usually appoints a local bank, Trust Company, or Mortgage Guaranty Co., its representative for the making of loans on new small dwellings and on new modern priced apartment houses. No loans are made of more than fifty per cent of the land value and the construction cost of the buildings. They are made for fifteen years at current interest rates, with option to the borrower to pay the entire loan after three years The full details of course cannot be gone into here, but are available at any time at the Chamber of Commerce room. However, it has been thought that the industries especially, might be interested in this proposition. In the industrial centers, the employed takes the place of the bank representative. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company builds the houses, and when finished, the company takes over the loans. About five thousand loans of this kind have been made. One of the most notable examples is that of Akron, where the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and the Firestone Tire and Rubber company assumed the responsibility. Each of these companies built about nine hundred houses which were sold to their employees.

President Byerly appointed a committee of five on the Municipal Auditorium, composed of the following: S. W. Sharpnack, chairman, R. W. Brown, John Steinbaugh, A. M. Marshall and C. S McKean.

It is the desire of the members of the Chamber of Commerce and of all public spirited citizens that the third floor of the Municipal building be completed at the earliest possible date, so as to make it available for public gatherings such as lecture courses, fashion display expositions, farer's institutes, plays of various kinds, etc. A committee of five to be known as the Exposition Committee was also appointed as follows: W. M. Darby, Joseph Haube, J. B. Schafer, Paul A. Kimmins and A. D. Bowers. It is the object of this committee to plan for the gardens for the coming summer, and to offer prizes of various kinds, and to make arrangements for a big exposition in the fall. This committee has its plans well under way already.

The Clean-up Committee has a general meeting last evening to lay plans for clean-up week, which begins Sunday, April 10th by sermons and announcements in the churches. The following resolution was unanimously approved. Namely: that the Clean-up Committee suggest to the Board of Directors that the Chamber of Commerce put on a Rat-Extermination Campaign at some early date; and also that it is the wish of the Clean-up Cimmittee of the Chamber of Commerce to go on record as being strongly in favor of a modern efficiency garbage incinerating plant for our city.

LACKING COMPANY WILL PAY DAMAGES

The county commissioners on Thursday made an inspection of the Frye station bridge on the Pigeon creek road, which was damaged recently when a driver for the Pittsburg Provision company ran into it with a big and heavily loaded truck. Some iron supports were broken out and the bidge was put out of plumb. The packing company has agreed to make settlement for the damage done.

A classified ad. will rent that vacant room.

REDUCED PRICES FOR ROAD WORK

Bids for the construction of approximately 80 miles of hoghway were opened by the State Highhway Department at Harrisburg on Thursday Most of the projects are in Western Pennsylvania and connect sections on important routes. The bids were for 17 projects on which the bonds opened February 18 were rejected, and Thursday's figures showed reductions from 8 to 10 per cent over figures submitted at that time. Commissioner Lewis S Sadler said that the department was disposed to look with favor on some of the bids because of the importance of the projects.

Among the bids submitted was one for the construction of 16,137 feet of improved highway in Somerset and Nottinghom townships, this county, on the Monongahela pike. which is on the connection road between Washington and Grensburg. The amount asked for this improvement is $198.299.75, the bid being submitted by the Jones Construction Company of Salem, Ohio.

Litigation in Lilley Case Is Far from Being Settled

Over one million one hundred thousand dollars are involved in a hearing before Judge Haldain B. Hughes of the Orphans' court in the matter of the exceptions to the first and partial account of Thomas and Jacob Elliott, executors of the estate of the late Thomas Lilley of West Brownsville, and majority stockholder in the Lilley Coal and Coke company. When the case was called on Thursday it looked almost like a special session of the bar association. There were 20 appearances of counsel entered in the case.

The account shows a total of $1,154,693.72 in the hands of the accountants, and credits to the amount of $359,011.99, leaving a balance of $795.681.73. There are some nineteen general exceptions made by Charles E. Lilley and Walter Lilley heirs of Thomas Lilley. In addition S U Ross, a coal speculator. takes exceptions to the credit of $10,000 commission paid him in the matter of the purchase of the Ten Mile coal field for the Lilley Coal & Coke company. Mr. Ross claims his commission totaled $17,521.62 and he expects to the account for the reason that it might be taken that the $10,000 paid would be in full payment to him of the commission due.

Attorney Guy Moffitt excepts to the credit of $35,000, payable to Coatom & Cottom, attorneys of Fayette county. Attorney Moffitt avers he was associated with Cottom & Cottom and is entitled to an equal distribution of the fees due Cottom & Cottom.

Exceptions are taken by the excepting heirs to the commission charged the exectors,$58,065.55,it being averred it is excessive and unreasonable. There are exceptions to numerous other items. Lightigation seems without end in straightening out the Lilley estate. which is said to be worth between $2,500.000 and $3,000,000.

ALLOW BUILDING OF GASOLINE TANKS

In the injunction suit of John and Teresa Dugan against Isaac C. Patch et al, doing business as Isaac Patch & Sons. at Houston, in this county, Judge James I. Brownson had handed down an opinion decreeing that the preliminary injunction heretofore granted be dissolved. The court found that there was not enough evidence to justify the court to restrain the defendant firm from installing two gasoline tanks, to which objections were made by the plaintiffs.

The defendants conduct a garage at Houston in connection with a line of motor omnibuses which they operate In 1920 they purchased a lot adjoining their garage building and made plans for the erection of an addition thereto. This lot adjoins the property of the plaintiffs. The plans for this addition call for the installation underneath of two gasoline storage tanks o a capacity of 12,000 gallons. The plaintiffs in their bill of complaint averred that these tanks would be a menace to their property.

MILLS TO RESUME ON MONDAY NEXT

Operations will be resumed on Monday next at the Glassport mill of the Pittsburg Steel company, and at the Clairton plant of the Carnegie Steel company. Thhey will run about one-fourth of their capacity. The Glassport mill has been down since last October, while the Clairton mill has been down for a few weeks.

MAKING PROGRESS AT THE STAR MINE

Work on the changes now being made at the old Star mine, near Riverview, by the H. C. Frick Coke company, indicate that this coal operation will be one of the largest in this section of the valley. A vast amount of work has been done already, but apparently it is only a start for the great changes that are to come. Three entry ways are being driven toward the river while another is started in a westerly direction toward the main body of coal held by the company. It will take several months to complete the plans the company has in view, but when all are completed the mine will give employment to a large number of men. The creek bed at the Star mine has been changed, a big bend being eliminated, and giving the company more room about its shops at that point.

SHOOTING AT FREDERICKTOWN MYSTIFIES COUNTY OFFICERS

Storekeeper on way Home is Shot to Death by some one Unknown

ITALIAN WOMAN IS ARRESTED

Adolph Schwartz, aged 48 who conducted a general store at Fredericktown, was shot to death about 10 o'clock Thursday morning. The motive of the crime remains a mystery, and Washington county officials are conducting an investigation.

Mrs. Martin Menelia, aged 37, was placed under arrest as a woman accused by Schwartz in his dying statement of having fired the shot which caused his death. Mrs. Menelia, who is an Italina, protested her innocense when questioned officers, but is being held pending a thorough investigation of the crime.

At the time he was shot Schwartz was driving along the road in a delivery wagon and was only a short distance from his store. The shot is said to have been fired by some person who was in a position in the rear of Schwartz's wagon.

Schwartz yelled out as he was shot and his cries attracted the attention of two men who stood only a short distance away. They rushed to the wagon and helped him to the ground. He soon lapsed into unconsciousness. So far as known no person actually witnessed the shooting. The two men who were absorbed in their conversation did not see the shooting but heard the shot.

Mrs. Menelia was placed under arrest about a half mile from the scene of the shooting. She was nroute to her home, she said. When arrested she did not have a weapon in her possession.

District Erwin Cummins, on being notified of the shooting, accompanied by T. M. Reese, clerk in his office, rushed to Fredericktown by automobile and in the evening were joined by County Detective John Weiner. The officers last nighht were completely mystified as to the motive for shooting.

COKE OUTPUT IS DOWN TO LOW POINT

Best available figures indicate that coke production of the H. C. Frick Coke copany this week will not exceed 20 per cent. The coal production probably will average around 45 per cent this higher production in coal being brought about by the operation of mines supplying by-product fuel for the big plant at Clairton. This percentage which was struck at the close of last week, is one of the principal reasons for some views as to the nearness of a new policy by the Steel Corporation.

PHELIN GIVES BAIL FOR FEDERAL COURT

William J. Phelin, under indictment in United States District Court in connection with the alleged robbery of the bonded warehouse of the Vandergrift Distilling company at Vestaburg. East Bethlehem township, was released from the Allegheny county ail on Wednesday in $2 000 bail, pending trial in Federal court. After furnishing bail in the office of the clerk of courts he was taken to the office of Alderman M. A. Riley Pittsburg, where he gave $1,000 bond for his appearance April 8 before Justice of the Peace Paul R. Natt, of Charleroi, on a charge of felonious assault with intent to kill.

In the Federal indictment Phelin and several others are accused of destroying locks and gaining access to the warehouse and removing distilled spirits. After a large number of barrels of whiskey were removed from the warehouse to a truck Federal Prohibition Agents A. E. Kemmerling and A. A. Silvis with State Police gave chase and fired at the robbers, who left their truck and whiskey an escaped. Phelin was arrested March 17.

LYDIANS HAD FIRST COINAGE

Treasure Deposited in the Temples Was Impressed With Badge or Symbol of Divinity.

So far as is known, the Lydians, says Herodotus, first introduced gold and silver coin. The invention was not far to seek. Treasure came to be deposited for safety in the temples, where it was consecrated to the care of the divinity by being impressed with a badge or symbol. The sacred symbol being accepted as guarantee of value, the pieces of metal so impressed found easy circulation. The earliest Lydian coins extant, deriving, probably from the reign of Gyges (about 700 B. C.), are bean-shaped lumps of native Lydian gold, blanched with silver. Each coin bears on its obverse the figure of a lion and on its reverse the impress of the nail-head serving to keep the metal in place, while being struck. From Lydia the one-sided coin spread throughout the coasts and islands of the Aegean sea, each city issuing coins bearing the symbol of its divinity. In Greece the earliest coins of silver, with the figure of the tortoise on the obverse, are said to have been struck by Pheidon of Argos. To Solon, about 590 B. C., is ascribed the introduction into Athens of the tetradrachm, on its obverse the head of Athene, on its reverse an owl. Sparta enjoyed all to itself the luxury of a purely iron coinage. The Greek coins from 480 to 300 B. C. marked a great advancement in the way of art, and Antheenian money was the chief medium of exchange during this period. Other nations later adopted their own coinage, which has continued to improve with the advance of civilization.

HAVE BEER ALWAYS ON "TAP"

Beverage Free to All Members of African Tribe, but Little Drunkenness Is Reported.

Among the Madi or Moru tribes of the White Nile in Africa, there exists a form of municipal brewery that would make a great hit among the thirsty in America. A special house is set aside for it, and all the women of the tribe spend part of their time in making beer from millet seed. White men who have tasted it declare it to be a first-rate drink of fine flavor and heady results. The beer is kept in enormous jars, and to each jar is attached a number of gourd dippers. The beer is free to anyone or everyone, the only restriction being that it be drunk in the brewery and not with meals. In spite of this freedom the tribe members seldom get drunk.

To make sure their women will stay on as brew-masters and not go running off with other men from nearby tribes, the girls are taken when ten or twelve years old and laid on the ground while a sharp stone is used to pry and knock out the four upper and lower incisors. The resulting effect is anything but beautiful—as the operation was. The clothing of the women consists of a string worn around the waist, and changed only when it gets so dirty that it cannot be seen against the dark skin.—Detroit News.

The human species, according to the best theory I can form of it, is composed of two distinct races, the men who borrow and the men who lend. To these original distinctions may be referred all those secondary classifications of Goth and Celtic tribes white men, black men, or red men. All the dwellers upon the earth, Parthians, Medes and Elamites, flock hither and do fall into their rank, with one or the other division. The infinite superiority of the former, which I suppose to designate as the great race is discernible in figure, port and certain instinctive sensibility. The latter are born degraded. He shall serve his brethren. There is something in the air of one of this cast lean and suspicious; contrasting with the open, generous manners of the other.—Charles Lamb.

Credit Belongs to Franklin.

Everybody knows that the versatile Franklin was the originator of many things. But few realize that he was the first American cartoonist. "Join or Die," the familiar sketch of the chopped-up serpent, with each piece representing one of the Colonies, was entirely the work of Franklin. Even the cutting of the type-metal was done by his own hands. This first newspaper cartoon appeared in the Pennsylvania Gazette, May 9, 1754, and was a device for urging united action upon the Colonies at the time of the French and Indian wars. It may be noted also that he engraved a map of the siege of Louisburg and published it in the Gazette. This is said to have been the earliest attempt at illustrating news.—Asa Don Dickinson in New York Times.

Weight of Air.

Until very recently nobody knew how much air weighed.

We cannot see the air, and, except when the wind blows, we do not feel it. Hence it seems to us to have almost no substance.

Yet it is a rather substantial fluid. When it moves at a rate of one hundred miles an hour it uproots great forest trees and throws the waters of the ocean into turmoil. If our bodies were empty of air the pressure of the atmosphere surrounding us would crush us to an immediate pulp.

A room ten feet long, ten feet wide and ten feet high contains 75 pounds of air.

A DIFFERENCE.

A correspondent who signs himself "An American, and America for me first after all," writes The Mail to take exception to a statement made in this paper with reference to "The Horros of the Rhine." The unknown correspondent says the stories coming fro his homeland are true, and charges The Mail with printing "unchristian hate."

While it is not our custom to answer those who are afraid to sign their names to communications, at the same time it mighht be said for the benefit of this person, whose sympathies are evidently with Germany, that if all that has been said about the "Horrors of the Rhine," by the "French black beasts," as he is pleased to call them are true, their alleged actions would not be a patch to the atrocities and excesses committed by the German soldiers when they invaded Belgium and France.

One of the great mistakes of the world war, and which is now generally admitted, was the granting of the armistice at the time when the German armies were on a retreat to the Rhinee. If the allied forces had gone into Germany as conquers,as they could and should have done, there would have been no doubt as to the settlement of every question in which so many nations of the world were concerned. The German nation was not harmed in a physical sense by the war, nor were her people abused and driven from home. a condition which led many of them to believe that they did not lose the war. Germany saved her face by "throwing up the sponge," and now wants to get out of reparation by claiming poverty. Germany will eventually pay, but in the process her people will not be subject to the brutalities which characterized the atrocities of the German soldiers in the early days of the war.

Germany is less war spent than some of its victors not only because it escaped devastating invasion but because during war it employed in its factories and on its farms a million detained Russian laborers and forcibly imported for like work 150,000 Belgians and many Frenchmen. Yet this soulless calculating Machiavelli among nations howls lustily when its own skin is scratched.

A Methodist clergyman in Mount Vernon, N. Y., has surprised everybody and doubtless displeased his own family, by refusing an offered $1,000 additional to his salary on the ground that $8000 is enough. Perhaps he reflected that the offered addition is more than the entire salary of some members of his profession.

To the shortage of sugar during the war is attributed the vastly increased consumption of jams and marmalades in Great Britian. which always was much greater relatively than in the United States. where the deficiency is doubtless more than made up by our record consumption of candy.

A Nebraska woman has appealed to veterans of the World War to find her a husband who "swears when necessary. stays out late at night and is not afraid to chew tobacco." Such extensive tolerances ought to enable this woman to keep a husband if she ever lands one.

Julian Huxley, grandson of the evolutionist has discovered another elixer of life, but the world will hardly get excited after recalling that all the previous discoverers died in no great while after in spite of their elixirs.

President Harding is said to have 70,000 appointments to make. Naturally there is no estimate of the number of hopefuls to be overlooked and left with a growing grudge, these being or to be countless.

The decision of a New York judge that one girl of 18 needs ten thousand a year for her education and maintenance will doubtless convince many other girls of 18 that a larger allowance is imperative.

If some of the Filipino leaders have asked Janan to help them secure their independence of the United States as reported, they are in sore need of a larger suply of gray matter.

Admiral Huse is not content with a bigger than the biggest slogan; he wants a navy as big as any two. The only way to get ahead of him is to demand an American navy as big as all others put together.

It seems that Boston women of fashion actually have the courage to wear low-heeled shoes and lisle stockings.

TIPPECANOE AND TYLER, TOO

Election Rallying Cry That Figured in Election of William Henry Harrison as President.

"Tippecanoe and Tyler, too," was the rallying cry of the Whigs in the election of 1840. William Henry Harrison was the choice of the Whigs The Whigs adopted no platform, and the only issue was whether or not the Jackson-Van Buren machine" should remain in power. Even among the Democrats there was much discontent. To attract this discontented element, the Whigs nominated for vice president John Tyler of Virginia who was a well-known anti-Jackson Democrat The campaign was the most exciting the United States had seen up to that time. Harrison's election was attributed to his military record. The election is often called "the log cabin and hard cider campaign." One end of Harrison's house at North Bend was an old log cabin which had been covered with clapboards. A campaign biography said that Harrison's table, "instead of being covered with exciting wines, is well supplied with the best cider." At first this simplicity received jeering from the Democrats, but the Whigs seized the opportunity to make the democracy of their candidate a feature of the canvass. Miniature log cabins and barrels of hard cider generally were in appearance whenever a Whig orator spoke. Harrison received 234 electoral votes to 60 for Van Buren.

Sausages.

Surprising as it may seem, there are 1,700 different varieties of sausages in the world today. All nationalities love certain national dishes, and some form of sausage seems included in the cuisine of every country. China makes sausages, and very good ones, from the western point of view. Germany is preeminently a sausage-eating nation. Great quantities of this food are consumed by the people of Latin countries. In Italy and France they are eaten more as a relish than as a dish, and the noonday meal often commences with thin slices of cold sausage, flanked with a few olives and a pat of fresh butter. Sausages in France are associated with certain fete days, and a kind of blood sausage is always served at the Christmas eve supper. Neither is sausage a modern food, born of economy and the utilizing of meat scraps. The town of Koenigsburg, Germany, in 1558, celebrated the national dish by making a bologna sausage more than 600 feet long.

Strike in New Zealand.

It was in October, 1913, that New Zealand experienced a food and fuel shortage as a result of a general strike, which began with a walkout of shipwrights. New Zealand had been referred to frequently as "a land without strikes" by magazine writers, who found in its labor and social laws material for much praise. Its industrial laws often were held up as models. New Zealand is a British colonial possession, discovered by Tasman in 1642. The settlers have been often at war with the natives, the Maoris. The dominion does not have a socialist government, although it has adopted radically socialistic policies. The government is vested in a governor, appointed by the crown and a general assembly consisting of a legislative council, appointed by the governor, and a house of representatives, elected.

Salaried or "Worth His Salt."

"Salary" is from the Latin, sal (salt), being derived from the early Roman custom of compensating her military officers with provisions as well as with coin. The analogy may still be discerned in the expression "He is not worth his salt"—that is, his perquisites. "Supercilious" from supercilium, the eyebrow, is literally elevating the eyebrows with disdain. "Sierra," as in the Sierra mountains, aptly describes the serrated appearance of this range, the word being Spanish for "saw." A "cur," from the Latin curtus, is philologically a dog with its tail cut short; hence also the word "curtail" with its amplifications. And curiously we find "sauntere" sprung from La Sainte Terre (the Holy Land) whitherward pilgrims were wont leisurely to journey.

Peculiar Habit of Eels.

The history of the eel is very remarkable, and in some respects unique. During the spring and early summer thousands of young eels several inches long migrate up rivers from the sea and distribute themselves throughout every accessible body of water, whatever its size or character, frequently traveling over land to reach these. Here they remain concealed in the mud or beneath stones, and feed on all kinds of animal matter, living and dead. Many eels appear never to leave the fresh waters in which they have developed but most of them after several years, return to the sea, and enter comparatively deep water where sexual maturity and spawning takes place.

In the days when the Roman empire was at its height, if you went into the culinary department of an elegant establishment you would find saucepans lined with silver and pails of various descriptions richly inlaid with arabesques in silver, and shovels very handsomely and intricately carved. Egg frames, too, that would cook 20 eggs at once, and pastry molds shaped like shells, and an infinite assortment of gridirons, frying pans, cheese graters and tart dishes. The toilet tables of the Roman women were well supplied in the same lavish fashion. Ivory combs, perfumes, cosmetics, hairpins, even an elaborate hair net of gold, have been recently unearthed.

Four Stars Cut From One Jewel.

The Four Stars of Africa were cut from the huge Cullinan diamond, which weighed 1½ pounds when discovered in Pretoria in 1904 and presented by the Union of South Africa. It looked like a lump of rock salt, and experts said it would have to be divided in the cutting. The largest portion was cut in a pear-shaped brilliant and set in the head of the king's scepter. The next largest portion was cut in cushion shape and set in the band of the king's state crown. The other two portions are in the head and cross of the queen's state crown. The largest portion weighs 516½ carats, and the four together 986 carats.

Eyebrows Tell a Story.

An Indian doctor has been making a study of the eyebrow, and he has found that in dementia praecox there are nearly always short, bushy hairs nearly meeting in the space between the eyebrows and a noticeable thinning toward the external side. In epileptic women the eyebrow is made up of two portions; the inside is in the form of a comma, of which the tail enters in the two branches of the external portion in the form of a Y. In epileptic men one often sees large tufted, heavily haired eyebrows, united at the median line. In maniac degrees of excitement the absence of the outer third of the eyebrow is common.

952 Franklin Cars Shipped in February

Sales Keeping Up to High Level at Syracuse Factory.

Business for the month of February as reported by the Franklin Automobile company of Syracuse show that sales are keeping up to a high level. By February 15 the entire month's production had been sold, and to meet the overdemand the factory was called upon for 100 more cars than planned for. Shipments for the month totalled 952 cars, or within 35 cars of the best February in the company's history—this occurring last year. A new record would have been hung up this year but for the fact that February, 1921 had one less day than February, 1920.

Even with the Franklin factory working on a 40-car-per-day program, which is the present rate of production, it found itself unable to keep up with orders. During February the total number of orders received aggregated 1107, and even the 952-car output fell short of filling orders for February shipment by 155 cars. The manufacturing schedule for March calls for the production of 1031 cars.

April 1st is a Day of Uncertainties

The ancient plug hat on the sidewalk probably conceals a brick, and just around a corner a mischievous boy is waiting to yell "April Fool." But these are just pranks which we all expect on that mischievous day.

It's the unexpected things in life that may have the most serious consequences---and EVERY DAY has its share of these uncertainties. When unexpected things happen, a good bank account comes mighty handy. And EVERY DAY our officers are available for consultation and advice.

JUST THREW OUT SUGGESTION

Traveling Man's Interpellation Not Really Made With Any Genuine Desire to Help.

A Hoosier traveling man had a hotel room next to one occupied by the two teachers during the recent teachers' convention. He was very tired and turned in early. But hardly had he closed his eyes when the two teachers came in from the evening session. They discussed it, one of them particularly being endowed with a voice commonly termed strident.

Finally they finished with the subject and he, thinking they were through with conversation for the night, turned over again and once more began to think of slumbering. But after a little pause the loud talker began on another theme, namely, the hard life of a teacher. After she had discussed it from all angles, she said: "If I only knew where I could succeed I would leave the teaching profession. Now, what could I really do as well as I can teach school?"

Before the second teacher could answer her the long suffering man rose to the occasion: "Madam," he shouted through the wall, "you could be an auctioneer."—Indianapolis News.

Very Human.

Jud Tunkins says his automobile unexpectedly quits work and demands more money, the same as if it had human intelligence.—Washington Star

The Financier.

A man gets on his knees to an heiress that she may put him on his feet.—Dearborn Independent.

Stock Market Full of Such.

Many a man who is afraid to take a chance loses his money on a "sure thing."

Duties of Queen Ant.

When the queen ant lays her eggs the workers gather about and pick up each one as it is laid and carry it away to the underground nurseries where it is watched and cared for by other workers. Sometimes the queen will escape her attendants. Away she hurries, evidently bent on playing a lark, but the moment her disappearance is noted the workers scurry out in every direction to find her, and once she is located she is dragged back to the home by force and gets many a sharp nip on the way as punishment. The queen is three or four times as large as the worker ant. Her first brood finds her busy cleaning up her house, digging a new room for a nursery, washing and cleaning her babies with her tongue, and feeding them from her store. After the first brood, however, this work is done by the working ants, and the queen has nothing to do but attend to the functions of motherhood.

Reading Man's Mind.

By watching a man's actions one can tell as plainly what is going on in his mind as a person can read a page of print, according to Dr. Henry Gaines Hawn, who is conducting a course of lectures at the chamber of commerce on the Kansas side. "Tell me the boyhood ambition of a man and I can tell you much of his character and desires," he said. "He may never have realized that ambition, may have spent his life in a far different business and met with success there, but his boyhood ambition tells the way his tastes run and he still likes the same things he admired then. Go into a courtroom and watch the two lawyers opposing each other and you can soon tell by the way they are questioning which fears for the safety of the case and which thinks himself on solid ground."—Kansas City Star

VIEWPOINT NEVER THE SAME

In Classifying Themselves the Sexes Have Always Differed and Probably Always Will.

It may be said without fear of contradiction that a given man's ideal of a woman, and that same woman's idea of herself, are two absolutely different things. For as regards themselves the sexes vision differently. So, general masculine ideals of femininity, and feminity's ideals of itself, are most unlike. We have John's John, and Mary's John; Mary's Mary, and John's Mary; and this square is far more difficult even to apprehend, much less resolve, than is the squaring of the circle. Or any mental glimpsing of the fourth dimension of space. Yet if the eternal two ever did really understand each other, interest would immediately cease; for what you understand you appropriate, in a sense you become that thing. In creating them male and female, therefore, so like yet unlike Providence constituted a distinction and difference that should prove a perennial source of interest and joy, with incidental exasperations, it may be, and perpetual wonder.

"Just like a man," "just like a woman," are the commonest of phrases—but what it is to be "just like a man," or "just like a woman," who can truly say? Does man understand woman any better today than he did in the Stone age, or woman understand man? Between the two is forever fixed the enchanting bridge—not chasm—of a perpetual why. The "central core of identity" in each may be trusted to keep its secret—the secret of a delight and God-given attraction. —Scribner's Magazine.

Real Meaning of Thrift.

The thrifty man is not necessarily a miser. Thrift means more than hoarded dollars. It embraces not only spending less than we receive, but the investment of our savings in enterprises which yield returns not only to ourselves, but to the public at large.

Irish Poplin Supreme.

Ireland leads the world in the manufacture of poplin and, although most of the silk used is of foreign manufacture, the Dublin weavers treat it in such a manner as to make Irish poplin a distinct fabric. It is composed of worsted made from the finest wool, and silk in combination, and no makers but the Irish seem to be able to produce the softness of texture and brilliance of coloring that is so characteristic of the best poplin. This is attributed to the peculiarity of the Dublin water and the skill and knowledge of the makers.

Hygienic Sleeping Rooms.

A sun bath, at frequent intervals, is effective in keeping the bedding healthy, sweet and wholesome. To this is added, of course, daily airing of the bedclothes for not less than two hours. Eiderdown quilts, though tempting to the eye of the housewife, are not as hygienic a covering as the more easily washed woolen blankets. As at least a third of our lives is spent in the bedroom it behooves us to see that it is clean, airy and hygienic, otherwise refreshing sleep will be impossible, and health will suffer.

Homemade furniture polish can be made by adding one tablespoonful of turpentine and one tablespoonful of linseed or lemon oil to one quart of boiling water. When cool enough to be comfortable to the hand, use as a wash water on all furniture except white enamel. Soft cheesecloth for wash cloth and a dry piece for a soft wiping cloth will give the good polish of clean wood. There being no varnish in the mixture, the furniture will not be sticky from this cleaner.

Orang-Outang Misnamed.

Occasionally the underbrush (southeastern Borneo) crashed beneath the tread of some heavy animal—a rhinoceros perhaps or possibly an orang-outang. I might add, parenthetically, that orang-utan means, in the Malay language, "man of the forest," while orang-outang, the name which we carelessly apply to the great anthropoid, means "man in debt."—E. Alexander Powell in Scribner's Magazine.

Perhaps He's Toothless.

Old Story to Him.

Wreck Fish Well Named

The wreck fish is one of the inhabitants of the sea with peculiar habits, getting its name because it may usually be found floating about a wreck or loose timbers in the open seas. It is closely related to the sea bass of English waters.

Smart Clothes
No Flapper Wants to Be Without

"Spring is here!" is the message conveyed in simple, unaffected fashion by the girlish modes we have gathered together for the delectation of youth.

Sprightly new styles, new fabrics and unusually attractive colors and combinations of tones make the long looked forward task of choosing stunning new things to wear a delightfully pleasant and profitable task. Prices are economical.

BRIGHT TONES AND ARTFUL DECORATIONS ENHANCE THE NEW HATS

Flowers, wonderfully natural looking, are draped around the crowns or permitted to hang gracefully from the sides or back of broad brimmed Hats of shiny lisere and milan straw. Tricotines, toques and turbans, made by hand from glistening cellophane or visca are embellished with jet ornaments and veiled with filmy laces. Such are the Hats milady may choose for street or afternoon wear. Sports occasions are represented here with chipper little hats in which silk fabrics, wool flowers, and strips of leather play prominent parts.

MILLER'S Fashion SHOP

YOU ASK WHY!

Wholesalers are asked everyday why is it that Mahieu is busy, working to full capacity, while it is not the case with other retail grocers. The wholesalers proceed to explain and this is what they say: Mahieu has the goods, Mahieu has no solicitors expense. Mahieu has no bad debts to include in the cost of goods, and then wind up by saying that nowhere else can a cash buyer get the goods he wants, when he wants them on as low a basis of cost as he can at Mahieu's. So you can readily see why he is working to full capacity. Indeed let us add that this house sold as many goods in three months as we did the first three months of this year.

Value of Home Experience.

"The middle-aged mothers who have successfully managed large homes and sent out their children as good citizens have proven that such training is invaluable in any national or public work. Any work requiring intricate knowledge and care of detail can be handled by such women just as well as by the younger women who we have been led to believe are the only leaders of the 'new race'," says a writer in the Independent Woman. "The middle-aged woman has countless opportunities for world usefulness."

The red grouse—probably the most sporting bird that flies—has never been known to nest outside the limits of the British Isles. This bird flourishes in every Scottish county and in most counties of Ireland and Wales. In England the grouse thrives only as far south as Derbyshire, all attempts to stock more southern districts, even when apparently suitable for the purpose, having proved failures, though some grouse survived for quite a long time after such an experiment in the Thetford district.

Quirks of Children's Minds.

A correspondent informs us that we did not quite complete our story about the little girl whose version of the national anthem was "My country teases me." He says she followed it with "Arthur of liberty." He adds: "And a close second to this is the following quotation from the twenty-third Psalm by another little miss, 'Surely the good Mrs. Murphy will follow me all the days of my life.'"—Boston Transcript.

Truly Feminine Enjoyment.

LEGEND IN NEW CLOTHING

Story of Samson and Delilah as It Might Have Been, but Undoubtedly Was Not.

"Now, Sammy," began Delilah, coaxingly, as she advanced toward him with her hands behind her holding a pair of scissors. "Just look up that tree—see the little birdie?"

And she coquettishly displayed the gold fillings in her five front teeth. Samson could never refuse Delilah anything when she flashed all that gold on him.

Delilah gently took hold of a lock of Samson's hair with her left hand, but before she could snip it off with her right, there was a thunderous knock on the door.

'Twas a man on horseback.

"Away! Away!" cried this ancient Paul Revere. "The flood is coming down Mount Dingus. Flee thee hence!"

"Oh, Sammy!" wailed Delilah, dropping the scissors. "And I just paid off the mortgage on the house this very week. Now all that money is wasted. Oh, Sammy!"

Samson thought hard for a moment. Then Delilah flashed her teeth once more.

"Up! Go up in the attic!" commanded Samson. Then he planted a kiss on Delilah's eyebrow and she flew.

Samson dashed out the door and lifted up the house in both hands and tied the doghouse around his neck.

And thus stood he, with Delilah high and dry, while the flood rushed down Mount Dingus and by.

"Gosh!" said Delilah to herself, after it was all over. "I'm glad I didn't cut his hair off before the flood."—Detroit Free Press.

FREEDOM MUST BE BOUGHT

And the Price to Be Paid Is Complete Mastery of All Passions and Appetites.

Freedom is not a gift, but an attainment. It does not characterize the state of nature, but flowers from the growth of personality and civilization.

Action issues from character and there is inner discord and the feeling of restraint until the individual is happy and satisfied in his act and attitude.

A divided will marks incomplete personality, and it is not a free will.

Every man must win his own freedom. He must desire it enough to pay its price, and its price is the mastery of passions and appetites.

As a man gains mastery over his own powers and desires he is free. Resolutions are good, because they witness to the sense of incomplete self-mastery and to the vision of greater self-control and freedom that are possible.—Minneapolis Journal.

Original Galoshes.

The fashionable galoshes that are now flapping about the ankles of pretty girls were first introduced in America about 1830 in Boston. The galoshes or boots were as ugly and clumsy as they are today, but were even more popular. They required peculiar care, as the manufacturers had little knowledge of the use of rubber gum. In winter they froze hard and stiff, and had to be thawed out before they could be worn, and care had to be taken not to thaw them too well, or they would run into a sticky mass. In the summer they got sticky and shapeless unless kept on ice and taken out during a rainstorm only. No one who was anyone thought his or her toilet complete without a pair. They had to be watched carefully, for once they started to rot the smell was terrible, and it was necessary to take them out and bury them.

Plan War on Hair Seals.

Hunting hair seals by airplane and destroying them by machine-gun fire has been seriously proposed to the Canadian fisheries department by fishermen, says a report from Vancouver, B. C. The scheme proposed and tried last spring of trapping the salmon-destroying hair seals at the mouth of the Eraser river by means of set lines and short laterals armed with strong hooks brought a measure of success, but was not entirely a victory over the wise mammalia of the ocean. The new proposal is to come down on them from the unsuspected heights, as they bask on the sandbars in thousands, and pour a stream of bullets into them.

Welding Optical Glass.

The improved method of welding optical glass worked out at the United States bureau of standards, gives perfect union with practically no distortion, and is adapted for many purposes, such as making glass cells and hollow prisms, joining lenses and closing glass tubes with accurately fitting flat ends. The shaped-glass object is heated in an electric furnace to the annealing point, when the application of a small blowpipe flame along the edges to be united produces a quick welding.

Unable to Choose National Tree.

American forests are so rich with infinite variety that President Wilson is unable to name a choice for a national tree, he wrote to the American Forestry association, which is compiling a national referendum as to what tree best represents America.

"Speaking for myself," said the President, "I find that I am quite unable to choose amongst the infinite variety

Of the Ancient Writers.

The excellence of the ancient writers does not consist in a trick that can be learned, but in a perfect adaptation of means to ends. The secret of the style of the great Greek and Roman authors is that it is the perfection of good sense. In the first place, said John Stuart Mill, they never use a word without a meaning or a word which adds nothing to the meaning; they knew what they wanted to say and their whole purpose was to say it with the highest degree of exactness and completeness and bring it home to the mind with the greatest possible clearness and vividness. The ancients were concise because of the extreme pains they took with their epithets; almost all moderns are prolix because they do not. The great ancients could express a thought so perfectly in a few words or sentences that they did not need to add any more.

Genius Never Satisfied.

To get the product of genius you are never done. Work done must be constantly subjected to revision. Every time it is done over there is opportunity for eliminations or additions. Sometimes you will have to recast the whole thing as your study leads you deeper into truth. But what of that? The work you put on it will be forgotten in the joy of a more perfect production. Every revision shows where improvement is possible and the very working over makes the final result the more perfect. Young men have seldom patience enough to stick to a thing until it's put into its best possible shape. But the man of genius is never satisfied. To him work is never finished so long as improvement is possible. To him the ideal is the end to work for. Anything less than this is little better than an irritation.

Mussel Mud From Sea of Value.

Along the shores of Prince Edward island there is to be found extensive deposits of mussel mud, so called locally, being organic remains of countless generations of oysters, mussels, clams and other shell fish. The shells, usually more or less intact, are found embedded in dense deposits of a mud-like substance, and this combination is a fertilizer of high value and potency. It supplies lime and organic matter, besides small quantities of phosphates and alkalis. An ordinary dressing of it has a very marked beneficial effect on the poor and most exhausted soils. The shells decay slowly year by year, throwing off deposits around Prince Edward island varying from five feet to twenty-five feet in depth. They are taken up by dredging machines, worked from rafts in summer or from the ice in winter.

Mouse-Eating Toad.

The voracity of the toad in devouring earthworms, beetles, earwigs, and other creeping things is well known, but it is an extremely rare occurrence for the animal to take a living mouse. Still, a circumsantial account is given of a toad at Portsmouth, England, that followed a mouse, not quite full grown, and suddenly drew it into its mouth. The mouse showed the dazed and fascinated signs that it exhibits in the presence of snakes and larger lizards. Dr. J. A. Boulenger has stated that he offered a tame toad very small mice, and they were eaten with avidity, and he believed that a toad will take any sort of live prey that it is able to swallow.

Have to Be Handy With Ax.

Nearly all rural Tasmanian men are fairly dexterous with the ax. In the back blocks it is a necessity of life, one of the settler's first jobs being to construct a hut or house out of the growing timber surrounding the site. On farms fencing posts are sure to be required, and splitting them out of tree trunks still demands skill as well as energy, though the older post and rail fence, the all-wood rabbit-proof fence, and the "chopping block" log fence still in vogue in heavily timbered districts required much more nice ax work than the post and wire fence now generally erected.

Alexander Hamilton married Miss Elizabeth Schuyler, December 14, 1780. They had six sons: Philip, born January 22, 1782, died November 24, 1801, from a duel wound; Alexander (soldier), born May 16, 1786, died August 2, 1875; James Alexander (lawyer), born April 14, 1788, died September 24, 1878; John Church (lawyer), born August 22, 1792, died July 25, 1882; William Steven, born August 4, 1797, died August 7, 1850, and Philip (jurist), born June 1, 1802, died July 9, 1884.

Candlemas Day.

The Romans had a day of purification, and in the course of time the second day of February was called the feast of the purification or presentation of Christ in the temple. At the Reformation the ceremonies of Candlemas day were not reduced all at once. Henry VIII proclaimed that upon Candlemas day it shall be declared that the bearing of candles is done in memory of Christ, the spiritual light whom Simon did prophesy, as it is read in the church that day."

Plant Puzzles Scientists.

The investigating scientist in plant life is seeking to learn why the silver sword plant is found in only two places in the world, one on the high slopes of the Himalaya mountains, the other near the extinct volcano on the island of Maui, Hawaii. The plant is similar to the Spanish bayonet and gets its name from the bright color of its leaves.

GEMS NOT TRUE TO COLOR

Popular Fallacy to Ascribe to Precious Stones Hues That May Be Called Definite.

Story writers talk of the sky being as blue as a sapphire, or of a wild beast's eyes glowing as yellow as topaz.

Most of us are under the impression that we can recognize gems by their colors, and that certain colors belong definitely to certain stones.

Quite a mistake. There is hardly a precious stone which is always true to color. Diamonds, of course, vary greatly. The famous Hope diamond is a real and most beautiful blue.

Green diamonds are found, and others of a lovely crimson, but these are very rare. Black diamonds are common enough.

Black pearls are rarer, but are found. Pink pearls are greatly prized. One of the finest in existence was found in a fresh water mussel in the Mississippi river and is valued at $15,000. Off the Pearl islands, south of Panama, pearls are found which are lead-gray and also green.

Sapphire mines in the Rocky mountains produce stones which touch the whole color scale from blue and red to an exquisite purple.

In Rhodesia is found a topaz of a most lovely pale blue. Yet the chemical composition of the gem proves it to be identical with the yellow topaz.

The colors of most gems are more or less fugitive. That is, under certain circumstances they are liable to fade. Take two rubies exactly similar, shut one in the dark, and leave the other exposed to full sunlight, and at the end of two years there will be a distinct difference between them. The one that has been exposed to the light will be decidedly paler than the other.

Similar results may be observed with both emeralds and sapphires. Garnets also will turn lighter, while in the case of the topaz, sunlight ends by diminishing and dulling the color of this stone.—Stray Stories.

DONKEYS FIGURE IN HISTORY

Merits of Patient Creatures Have Been Sung by Poets and Depicted by Painters.

The "common or garden" donkey is one of the most laughed-at animals, and few of us pause to think what a figure this stubborn but patient creature has made in literature, art, and history. The very first picture the visitor to the London National gallery sees as he enters the building is a beautifully painted ass upon which the Virgin sits with her infant Son. It is Holman Hunt's "Triumph of the Innocents." Balaam's ass has passed into a proverb of the foolish instructing the wise! There is, too, the Golden ass of Apuleius, a romance of the Second century. Balzac with his "Ass's Skin," Sancho Panza with his adored donkey, and Sterne with that dead donkey which he has immortalized. Then who can forget Robert Louis Stevenson's delightful "Travels With a Donkey," where the donkey is almost as entertaining as the author? There was, too, the famous donkey of Mafeking, and Halil Bey's donkey which was shaved of its ears by a British shot, and there was Matanza's mule killed in Cuba—but that was only half a donkey! King Midas was said to have ass's ears, and it was upon an ass that Mohammed went to paradise to learn the will of Allah. It was named Al Borak (the lightning), so it must have been the swiftest ass on record!

Dachshund a Hunting Dog.

The dachshund is a true hound and is used for hunting in Europe, especially for getting foxes and other such animals out of holes, as it is a great digger, and its peculiar build enables it to go down a relatively small hole. It has an excellent nose, and will trail rabbits, foxes and other game with great tenacity, but it is little used for hunting in this country because it is hard to train and manage, paying little attention to orders, and doing as it pleases. If the game goes to earth, it is almost impossible to get the dachshund away until it has been dug out. This breed is of great antiquity, one of its kind being painted on an Egyptian monument of 2000 B. C.

To the layman it may seem an impossible task to learn all of the things disclosed by the many parts of a human being, and yet, through the work of the men who have made these things their life study, the fundamental principles of characterology can be quickly learned and applied by the average business or professional man. Such a knowledge will enable business men to choose their associates and employees so that natural ability will harmonize with work in hand and every man will possess the precise innate capacity which will enable him to become an expert in the department to which he is assigned.

Blue of the Sky.

Not one in a hundred persons can tell why the sky is blue, or why the sunrise and sunset are red. But anyone can easily demonstrate the working of the "blue sky" law of nature. Blow a film of smoke into a darkened room and admit the light from one window only. Look at the smoke against the dark background of the room and its color is bluish, but look through it at the light and it appears reddish. The interception of the blue rays by small particles in the atmosphere produces the blue color. The red rays carried in white light jump the gaps be-

As Others Saw Him.

To see ourselves as others see us has its humorous as well as its salutary side. The Fellows of the Society of Antiquaries may take note and fashionable collectors look to their laurels. At Norwich, England, a man was characterized as a dealer in antiques, and the description was added: "He is a man that goes round buying old fashion pots and such like."

First Roller Skates Crude.

The first roller skates were made in London in 1823. These and other models brought out later could be guided in curves only at the expense of enormous friction. It was not until 1863 that an American brought out a roller skate that made curves and figures such as those possible on ice skates.

Up to Mrs Smith.

Jack was visiting a neighbor who always had a supply of home-made cookies on hand. She gave him one, which he ate, and Jack asked for a cookie to bring to his mother. When he reached home he said: "Mother, Mrs Smith said she was sorry but there was a bite out of your cookie."

Hawks Migrate En Bloc.

The autumn migration of hawks is made partly en bloc, a large proportion of the total population of several Northern species appearing and passing southward at certain more or less definite times. Often one "wave" of the birds will follow a period of quiescence, which will be in turn succeeded by another wave.

The Death Cup.

The death cup is a very poisonous mushroom of wide distribution. It ranges in color from pure white to more common form in the United States, to olive or yellow, and is so called from the prominent volva. It contains phallin and is almost invariably fatal when eaten.

I can't recall when I have seen a homely girl in charge of the reception room of a business office. It has long since dawned on employers that beauty makes an excellent first impression, and, moreover, that beauty whether in a girl or the wallpaper, boosts the office morale.—The Nation's Business.

Silent Criticism Powerful.

Critic sin that says not a word counts for most. Those who effectively rebuke us and help us to better living are not they who talk freely to us about our shortcomings, but they who are quiet, doing the things we are failing to do.—Exchange.

Little Mary was awed in fright one night recently. When her mother went to her to ascertain the cause of her screams she said: "Oh, I dreamed that satan and all of his family were coming into the house."

Friends and Books.

The first time I read an excellent book, it is to me just as if I had gained a new friend; when I read over a book I have perused before, it resembles the meeting with an old one. —Oliver Goldsmith.

POST REDUCTIONS IN THE COKE REGION

W. J. Rainey, Inc., the Washington Coal and Coke company, and practically all of the independent coal and coke operators in the Connellsville district on Thursday posted notices, effective today, of wage revisions which go back to the wage scale of November 10, 1917. This is a reduction from 25 to 30 per cent under the present scale of the H. C. Frick Coke Company.

First reductions were made some time ago by the W. J. Rainey company, which has taken the lead in the present readjustment. The new scales posted on Thursday followed conferences etween the independent operators and affects practically all of the independent operators in the Connellsville region.

CLUB MEMBERS AID IN REPAIRING ROAD

By an agreement with the State Highway Department the members of the Monongahela Valley Country Club are assisting in the repair to the highway which passes through their proprety in Carroll township. At the present time seven trucks are engaged in hauling "reddog" or burned slate from the slack pile of the Schoenberger mine at Baird station, which is being placed on the roadway between the Edgar Wickerham farm and the Monongahela City line at the Hagerty farm, just below the club house. The placing of the burned slate will aid materially in putting the road in good shape for the balance of the year and will not only be quite a convenience to club members, but to the general public as well.

Fatigue and Production.

Curiously, recent observations have shown that production actually increases with fatigue within certain limits; feverish haste and a dislike of not finishing up are not infrequent even when the work is not congenial.

"Rare" Ben's Epitaph.

Not only is Ben Jonson's epitaph in the Abbey, "O rare Ben Jonson," one of the simplest ever composed, but it is said to have cost no more than eighteenpence. The stone over his resting-place was originally quite bare, and an admirer of the dramatist, as a personal tribute, paid a mason 1s. 6d. (36 cents) to cut the four words on the stone. The author of this simple epitaph was probably Sir William Davenant, who succeeded Jonson as Poet Laureate, and was also buried in Poet's Corner, with a similar inscription on his tombstone, "O rare Sir William Davenant."

The Virgilian Plow.

Early the forest elm is bowed by main force to bend into a share-beam, and takes the shape of the curving plow; to the stock of it are fitted the long eight-foot pole, the two mold-boards, and the double back of the share-head; and the light lime is cut to season for the yoke, and the tall beech for the plow-tail that is to turn the carriage from above and behind, and oak battens are hung over the fire for the smoke to search them through. —"The Eclogues and Georgics of Virgil" (tr. by J. W. Mackail).

Great Secret.

A business concern in Boston has this pungent maxim prominently displayed in its front window: "A completed transaction is an asset; unfinished business is a liability." A modern efficiency expert could write a 60,000-word book on that text, and then really not say much more. The world is full of "starters" who never get anywhere. The big idea is to choose only worth while objectives and then finish what you start.—Albert Sidney Gregg.

Embarrassing Moment.

The car was crowded and as we neared our destination my cousin and I decided to make our way toward the door. I suddenly missed my purse, so we started back through the car to look for it. A number of people helped us in the hunt, and then a woman said: "Why, your purse is hanging on your umbrella." I should have liked to have made an exit through the nearest window.—Chicago Tribune.

Czar's Carpets for Sale.

Ten Persian carpets that were presented to Czar Alexander I. by the shah of Persia and subsequently were given to the prince of Oldenburg, the father of the present owner, are being offered for sale in London at $2,500. The carpets are said to have been rescued from the Bolsheviki, but nothing has been allowed to "leak out" except that they were brought to England by a British cruiser. Their age is some 120 years.

Performing Duty.

Let us do our duty in our shop or in our kitchen, the market, the street, the office, the school the home, just as faithfully as if we stood in the front rank of some great battle, and we knew that victory for mankind depended upon our bravery, strength and skill. When we do that, the humblest of all will be serving in that great army which achieves the welfare of the world.—Theodore Parker.

Bears Favored by Nature.

In the woods of India are found many small brown bears that are known as the honey bears, because of their love of honey and their continued search for the hives of wild bees. These bears are fitted by nature to get the honey, two of the upper incisor teeth being missing, and their lips are very extensile.

Truth About Porcupine.

The quills of the porcupine are loosely inserted in the skin, and may, on being violently shaken, become detached—a circumstance which may have given rise to the purely fabulous statements that the animal possessed the power of actually ejecting its quills like arrows or darts at an enemy.

The Usual Way.

TAUGHT USE OF PLOWSHARE

How Legendary Chinese Emperor Is Said to Have Encouraged Agriculture in That Country.

In Europe the most significant of the gifts of the soil are wheat and flax; in China they are silk and rice. Old Chinese myths name Shen-nung or Sienmung the "divine laborer," a legendary emperor who is said to have reigned in the first half of the third millennium before Christ, as the father of agriculture. It was he who first made a wooden plowshare and taught the people how to use it. Shen-nung was one of the three emperors whom legend reveres as founders of the Chinese social system. It was Shen-tsan, or Sien-tsan, the wife of Huang-ti, another of the three, who taught the people the rearing of silk worms and the treatment of cocoons and threads and the weaving of silken garments, so that her subjects might no longer suffer from "chapped and frost-bitten skin."

The sanctuary of Shen-nung is still standing, south of Pekin, E. Meyer Riefstahl writes in Asia Magazine. Here the last emperor of China used to come every year to bring a sacrifice to the presiding divinity and to open a furrow in the soil with his own hands. The ceremony is very ancient. Even in the sixth century there was an imperial field that formed a sanctuary fourteen li south of the capital. There, in the first months of spring, on a day of good augury, sacrifices of a steer, a sheep and a pig were made to Shen-nung and to Hou-tsi. The emperor, clad in his state robes and the ritual bonnet, entered the golden chariot of state and performed thrice the ritual of sacrifice. After this the ceremony of plowing took place.

To the north of the city, in olden times, Shen-tsan had an altar. Later the shrine was transferred to the precinct of the palace, where the empress presided over the rearing of silkworms and the production of silk. Old records mention the mulberry grove of the empress and her pavilion for the rearing of silkworms. Toward the middle of spring, in ancient times, the chief of the court would summon the empress to the grounds north of the city to begin the rearing of silkworms. The ladies of the palace and the wives of high dignitaries aided her in the task. After fasting and sacrificing to Shen-tsan, the empress and the concubines of the emperor themselves gathered the mulberry leaves. The silk obtained was used for the sacrificial robe of the emperor.

Incident to his 1920 census, Uncle Sam has found that our island possession, Guam, produces from its 225 square miles, with its population of 13,275 native, 1,140,924 pounds of copra for export to the United States and 851,680 pounds to Japan.

The live stock on the island includes 6,149 water buffalo, 4,357 horses, 1,160 goats, 543 hogs and 73 cattle. Corn, sweet potatoes, taro, yams, tobacco, cassava, rice, arrowroot and sugar, are included among the field crops. Coconuts, bananas, pineapples, papaya, cacao, limes, mangoes, grapefruit and even alligator pears constitute the food-producing trees and plants.

Whereas, there are 106.2 males to 100 females in the United States, there are 95.7 males to 100 females in Guam. Some 41.7 per cent of the men are single.

The climate is said to be tropical but healthful and pleasant, remarks the Portland Journal. The island of Guam is almost a neighbor, being only about 5,600 miles from our coast.

Water as a Diuretic.

A powerful diuretic is water—its action in this respect, drunk by a healthy man, being very marked, and it appears impossible to explain its limitation by a mere increase in blood pressure, whether local or general; it has the power of increasing tissue change, and thus multiplying the products as fast as they are formed—and thus, by giving rise to increased appetite, provides fresh nutriment for the tissues, and acts as a true tonic. In persons who are accustomed to take too little water the products of tissue waste may be formed faster than they are removed, and, thus accumulating, may give rise to disease. Many gouty people are accustomed to take too little water, except in the form of a small cup of tea or coffee daily; a large tumbler of water drank every morning, and especially with the addition of some nitrate or carbonate of potassium, will prevent a gouty paroxysm.

Confederate Money.

Old and new issues of Confederate currency are being passed throughout the Baltic states as current American dollars, according to the Red Cross Bulletin of Riga. Many natives have bought these valueless issues from foreigners recently returned from the United States.

Many Russians have come into the American Red Cross offices in Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania with stage money, cigar and cigarette coupons which they had bought as American greenbacks.

Seed Distribution by

Tulips, narcissus and hy[illegible] lbs. to the number of 325,000. [illegible]t by the congressional seed distribution this year, were grown at home. Work of the United States Department of Agriculture in its Puget sound gardens has shown that that region is adapted to the cultivation of the so-called Dutch bulbs, which, in the past, have been almost entirely imported.
